5. Learning Styles and Teaching Methods

One of the best things about homeschooling is the ability to customize your child's education to best suit his or her needs. Both you (as the parent-teacher) and your children (the students) need to think about several things:

- ✓ Favorite subjects in school and why
- ✓ Favorite teachers and why
- ✓ Favorite memories of school days and why

Now list your least favorite in these categories, and tell why:

- ✓ Least favorite subjects in school and why
- ✓ Least favorite teachers and why
- ✓ Least favorite memories of school days and why

Knowing these things will help you realize how you (and your children) best learn and what methods are least effective.

What are your learning styles?

6. Choosing Curriculum

Before choosing a curriculum:

- ✓ Decide how much time you have to teach your children each day (in hours).
- ✓ Decide how much money you have available to spend.
- ✓ If money is tight, what local resources do you have? (libraries, homeschool support groups, etc.)
- ✓ What are your child's educational weak areas? (math, phonics, attention span, etc.)
- ✓ What are your child's future goals? (college, occupation, interests, etc.)
- ✓ What are your child's learning styles? Your own?
- ✓ Design your own curriculum! (Use the Bible!)

7. Paying for It All

Expenses you shouldn't forget about:

- ✓ Internet access
- ✓ Computer
- ✓ Printer
- ✓ Printer Ink and paper
- ✓ Classes
- ✓ Sports
- ✓ Museums
- ✓ Gas
- ✓ Music and art lessons
- ✓ Tutors
- ✓ Online classes

TIME IS EXPENSIVE!

If you make your own curriculum, budget for basic reference materials.

9. Be Realistic

“In every part of your world that you can control, celebrate Torah in all its beauty. In all the areas you cannot control, celebrate love and bring joy to others (which is also Torah).” (Author Unknown)
